Statement—I

Details of Livestock Production Enhancement Programmes Operated at I.V.R.I.

The IVRI being a premier Institute in Veterinary Science has been conducting researches on livestock production since 1937. The intensification of research on improvement of cattle started in 1970 and was brought under the purview of an All India Coordinated Research Project (AICRP) on cattle breeding. Similarly work on pigs and goats was initiated at IVRI in 1971 as par of the AICRPs.

Breeding improvement both by selection and cross breeding, has been carried out at the Institute by crossing Hariana with Holstein-Friesian, Brown Swiss and Jersey breeds, the latter under the AICRP on cattle. Different combinations having ½ exotic inheritance from one exotic breed, ¼ from another exotic breed and ¼ Hariana have been produced and their inter se crosses are now being produced and tested at the Institute.

Under AICRP on pigs, cross-breeding on indigenous pigs with Landrace pigs and reciprocal crossing was earlier being carried out of stabilize the breed at 50 per cent exotic blood after subjecting it to selection on the basis of faster growth and better efficiency of feed utilisation and now work on indigenous pigs and their improvement through selection and cross-breeding with exotic breed has been taken up.

Under AICRP on goats selection for pashmina production aimed at 200 gm /annum with average fibre diameter of 14 micron was attempted. The breeding programme as envisaged is in progress.

A small herd of buffaloes is being maintained at the Institute for studies on animal nutrition and physiology.

Earlier research on sheep and poultry was being conducted in the poultry research Division and under AICRPs on poultry, and sheep respectively. These were transferred to the Central Avian Research Institute and to the Central Institute for Research on Goats after these were set up in the Sixth Plan.

Apart from these, research in the disciplines of animal physiology, animal nutrition and animal health also contributed substantially to animal production enhancement programmes at the Institute.
